7th. EMIGRANTS.

The general conduct of all the emigrants was very good. No case of misconduct among the single females has been reported to me by the Matron.

How observed? What breaches, if any, reported for punishment in the Colony?

The Regulations were well observed. I have no breach of them to report.

School was regularly attended. The average attendance was 35. Considerable progress was made in spelling, reading, and arithmetic.

Was the water produced of good and wholesome quality, and sufficient for daily use throughout the voyage?

There was a water distilling apparatus on board made by Gravelly.

It produced on an average 200 gallons water daily, at a consumption of 16 cwt. to 18 cwt. coal daily.

It had no cooking apparatus attached to it. The water produced was of good and wholesome quality, but was not sufficient for daily use throughout the voyage.

11th. VENTILATING APPARATUS.

Was there any on board, and by whom made?

Did it answer, and to what extent?

None.

12th EMPLOYMENT.

What prospect for Emigrants?

13th. GENERAL REMARKS AND SUGGESTIONS, IF ANY

The principal feature of our voyage was the outbreak of measles. It commenced on the 6th day out in the single women's compartment, and there were in all 4 cases there. Two of the single men were laid up with it, and all the other cases were in the married people's compartment - two being adults and all the others children. When the first cases occurred I had them at once removed to the Hospitals with their beds bedding clothes &c. No one but myself had access to them, and food was passed in through the windows. The nurses were only allowed out when the single women had retired for the night and then they took exercise on the poop. I was then always present to see that they had no communication with anyone. When the Hospital was full several others took the disease and had to be left in the 'tween-decks. About the same time it rained hard for some days, and the water came into the Hospitals from the roof sides and Combing. A canvas cover was put over the House well tarred - afterwards a second one - and then an awning - but still they were so wet as to be unfit for habitation. During some heavy weather the windows of one Hospital were smashed in and the place filled with water. The sick were at once removed below, and the Captain informed me that in unsettled weather it was unsafe to put anyone there again. I then closed both Hospitals, and, for the remainder of the voyage they were never dry.

With respect to the 4 deaths - two were infants prematurely born, and can hardly be said to have breathed. They only gasped for a few moments, and should rather be called miscarriages. The other two were from measles - aged 2 and 1 respectively - and were so delicate that almost any disease would have cut them off.

I would respectfully suggest that no temporary erection be again used as a Hospital. During the latter part of the voyage I could not even store my spare beds there on account of the leak, and I found it a very great inconvenience with so many births taking place.

With regard to the Medical Comforts I would suggest that Corn Flour be added to the list. A number of delicate infants on board would eat nothing else, and I obtained a considerable quantity of it from the cabin stores.

The conduct of all on board was very good and the Surgeons and other discharged their duties to my satisfaction.
